Here we go!

2. Now that users have an idea what they need, our suggestion tool will provide pre-selected options based on the users planning space. Users can ultimately select whichever elements they want.

Your Planner is Almost Finished!

Think about each of the pages you've selected. Consider the following questions:

- How will you use each one?
- How's the flow of your planner?
- Does it make sense to you?
- Do you have enough of a layout?
- Is there enough space for you?

When you're ready to move on, just hit the button below!

I'm Ready!

3. Once the planner is built, users will be asked to envision how they'd use each space. This will help them reduce wasted or unused spaces. If they want to make changes, they can go back at this time.

4. Yay! They've finished creating their planner! Users will be offered the opportunity to share what they've done and will be able to join our planner community. Here they can share layouts & ideas with others (builds culture)

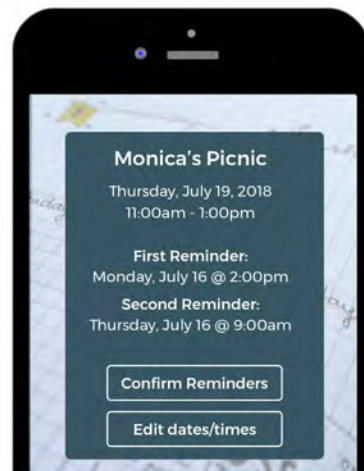

5. Primary users happily receive their planners in the mail and begin using them! Secondary users will also enjoy their totally customized planners, but are still missing a little something special...

6. After the initial launch, we'll explore the opportunity for a mobile companion app! It will particularly interest secondary users who use their cell phones for reminders.

7. The app is really neat! It will create reminders with a simple calendar when users photograph their planning pages. It recognizes dates and times so all users have to do is confirm them!

8. Secondary users (The Untiring Mothers) will rejoice because they now have the complete hybridized experience that they need.
